

Many international parties are currently speaking for Haitians and contrasting opinions are being presented regarding how Haitians believe the current crisis should be resolved. In response to the mixed messaging of what Haitians want we created an anonymous public opinion poll to evaluate a better understanding of what those in our contact network see regarding the capabilities of the Haitian National Police to provide public security at this time, to gauge support of an international intervention and to hear ideas on how individuals would remedy the current situation given the chance.

Methodology

The anonymous online poll was shared through our contact network on social media and WhatsApp over a two week period from September 30 through October 14th, 2022. The survey was sent out in Haitian Creole and French. The results (n=104) were filtered (n=89) for IP addresses in Haiti, and each IP address could only submit one response. Despite communication difficulties throughout this time period 8/10 departments are represented in the results.

We asked if it is believed that there needs to be an outside military intervention to provide adequate security and public safety at this time?

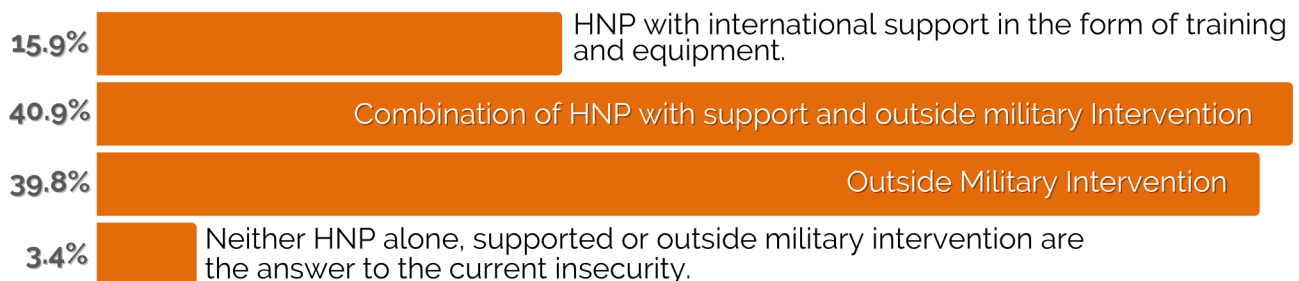

15.9% Believe the Haitian National Police (HNP) could provide adequate security with international support (in the form of advanced training, increased weapons, armored vehicles and protective gear)

3.4% Do not believe the HNP can provide security nor that outside military intervention is required to provide security and public safety.

80.7% Believe outside military intervention is required to bring adequate security and public safety.

We asked those polled who they believe could bring adequate security and public safety at this time.

None of those polled believe the Haitian National Police alone can provide adequate security and public safety at this time.
